The famous Green River, as it re-emerges from Flaming Gorge Dam, provides 25 scenic miles of world class flyfishing, rafting and backcountry camping.
Welcome to our slice of Paradise

Prepare yourself for a little well-earned adventure! Within these pages we will unveil why Flaming Gorge is so special. Unspoiled and lacking the crowds of most recreation areas, Flaming Gorge Country is an outdoor wonderland. Year-round recreational opportunities are centered on the 91-mile Lake Flaming Gorge and the famed Green River. Enjoy a wide range of active pursuits to fill your days, or just sit back and take in the breathtaking scenery. Come marvel over our abundant wildlife. We do.
Halfway between Yellowstone and Arches National Parks is a resource so outstanding it was designated a National Recreation Area. Flaming Gorge is a magical vacation destination and a rewarding stop along your tour of western National Parks. The landscape here provides the contrast in scenery for which the West is famous, from Utah’s rugged Uinta Mountains to the expansive Wyoming deserts. This spectacular combination serves as home to huge numbers of big-game animals, including moose, mule deer, Rocky Mountain elk, pronghorn antelope and bighorn sheep. Wildlife watching is a year round passion here.

Rich in Western lore, Flaming Gorge Country was home to mountain men, pioneers, outlaws and Native Americans. John C. Fremont and John Wesley Powell were early visitors during their scientific explorations of the West. In his 1869 journey down the Green River, Powell named many local landmarks: Flaming Gorge, Horseshoe Canyon, Red Canyon, the Gates of Lodore - names that attest to the dramatic scenery that still impresses visitors today. The legends of Butch Cassidy, Jim Bridger and Queen Anne Bassett were forged in this country. Historic Swett Ranch, Browns Park, Fort Bridger, and the Oregon Trail all offer carefully preserved glimpses of the early days of the Western frontier.

When it comes to outdoor recreation, Flaming Gorge may have no equal. From an exciting raft trip to a leisurely scenic drive - the choices are endless. Boating, rafting and fishing are only some of the ways to enjoy our waters. Hiking, biking and camping reward visitors with an intimate encounter with our splendid backcountry.

Flaming Gorge Country offers anglers one of the most diverse fisheries in the world. There are hundreds of waters to fish within an hour’s drive from Lake Flaming Gorge and even more ways to fish for them. From the high mountain lakes and streams that flow into Flaming Gorge to the Green River that flows out of our country there are literally millions of fish to be caught by today’s anglers!
GO FOR RECORD BREAKING FISH IN THE LAKE

The Flaming Gorge Reservoir has a history of being known as one of the west’s great fisheries. From the world record German Browns caught throughout the 70’s and early 80’s to the state record lake trout, rainbow trout and brown trout, Lake Flaming Gorge is known for holding big fish. This 91 mile long reservoir holds numerous trophy species, including rainbow trout, brown trout, lake trout (Mackinaw), kokanee salmon, tiger trout, small-mouth bass, largemouth bass, carp, channel catfish and burbot.

CAST A FLY ON FAMOUS WATERS

The Green River below the Flaming Gorge Dam is one of the most renowned trout fisheries in the world. The water from the dam is regulated to maintain an optimum temperature and flow that has created a world-famous blue ribbon trout fishery. It’s clear, emerald waters support a large population of trout, with rainbows being more common just below the dam and browns dominating downstream. The Green flows through a scenic, steep-walled canyon. The rugged terrain allows access in only three areas: just below the Dam, Little Hole and Browns Park. You can drive to these locations and fish your way up or downstream, or float the river in a drift boat or rubber raft. The best way to learn this amazing fishery is to take advantage of local expertise – guides around here are some of the best in the west. Learn more about them in our Outdoor Adventures listings in this magazine or on www.FlamingGorgeCountry.com.

FIND FAST & FURIOUS FISHING IN THE HIGH COUNTRY

If you really want to get away from it all, the High Uinta Mountains are the place to be. Come late May into early June the high mountain lakes and streams start to thaw, and if you are lucky enough to be there with your fly or spinning rod, get ready for some of the highest number fish days you will ever see! There are over 600 natural mountain lakes in the Uintas and thousands of streams that are packed full of brookies, cutthroat, rainbows and, if you search hard enough, grayling. Some of the more popular & easily accessible lakes in our area include East and West Greens Lake, Brownie Lake, Sheep Creek Lake, Long Park Reservoir, Spirit Lake and Hoop Lake to name a few. But if you are more adventurous and like to get out and hike, check out Tamarack Lake, Daggett Lake, Fish Lake or Island Lake. Flaming Gorge’s high county is a very special place that has remained naturally wild. A visit to these mountains will take you back to a place in time when Indians and Mountain Men lived off the land.

ICE FISHING IS VERY PRODUCTIVE

There is usually a good four months where the northern end (at least) of Flaming Gorge Reservoir is covered in ice. And a very popular winter activity is ice fishing. The larger lake trout are targeted off in the deeper water and the smaller trout and kokanee salmon will be found in shallower water. It is also becoming very popular to fish for burbot through the ice at night time. This may sound crazy, but come out to Flaming Gorge in the dead of winter, in the middle of the night and it looks like a whole bunch of small towns lit up by lanterns & head lamps up and down the reservoir.

FLAMING GORGE IS FISHING COUNTRY!

The majority of the businesses in the area are here to accommodate visiting anglers. We recommend taking a guided fishing trip as the best way to enjoy this remarkable resource.
The only way to truly experience the beauty of Flaming Gorge Reservoir in its entirety is to do so by boat. Flaming Gorge stretches 91 miles in length and has some 350 miles of shoreline for hiking, camping and exploring. Boating from one end of the Lake to the other is like passing between two different worlds. The northern end of Flaming Gorge is high desert terrain, with beautiful rock pinnacles, cliffs and long stretching beaches. The waterways on the southern end of Flaming Gorge are winding canyons with vibrantly colored cliffs and lush forests.

Boat camping on Flaming Gorge is endless. From miles of undeveloped shorelines to countless side canyons, it's easy to find a quiet and secluded camping experience. Boat-only campgrounds exist that allow for developed camping in areas reachable only by water. These campgrounds offer docking, restroom facilities, picnic tables and designated fire pits.

If a mellow daytrip of sightseeing is what you seek, make sure to bring your camera! Wildlife viewers stand in awe as the big horn sheep graze the hillsides and scale the steep walls of the canyon, while Osprey hover above in search of good fishing. An abundance of creatures call the Flaming Gorge area home and keep travelers guessing what is around the next bend.

If you enjoy catching big fish, this is definitely a place that will keep you coming back time and time again. While shore fishing is a good way to keep the kids entertained for the day, the trophy lake trout fishing does require a boat to access the deeper waters. Flaming Gorge Reservoir is legendary big fish territory and holds many state records for Lake Trout, Brown Trout, Kokanee Salmon and Smallmouth Bass. If you really want to hone in on the secret spots, book a guided fishing trip and learn the ropes from a pro.

Another perk of Flaming Gorge is the absence of over congestion. There is a surprisingly low amount of boat traffic in comparison to neighboring lakes such as Powell. Around any bend in the canyon you can find smooth as glass waters that are ideal for skiing and wakeboarding. This is a pleasant surprise for most of the public who have grown accustomed to fighting crowds.

For more detailed information about the lake while in the area, make sure to check out our area visitor centers and marinas. There are three marinas located on Flaming Gorge Reservoir: Cedar Springs Marina, Lucerne Valley Marina, and Buckboard Marina. All three provide gas sales, pump-out facilities, daily boat rentals, guided fishing trips and lake tours.

Whatever draws you to the waters of Flaming Gorge; it is undeniable that it will keep you coming back for more. The magical surroundings paint the perfect backdrop for an unforgettable vacation.
For a state that is famous for its slickrock desert country, Utah sure has a lot of whitewater adventures!

For the earliest explorers, like Major John Wesley Powell in 1869, this whitewater was often death-defying - crushing their wooden boats, dumping precious supplies and giving many a river pioneer the swim of their lives. In the early 1900’s, river-running techniques changed and challenging these notorious rapids became, well, fun. By the 1930’s, Utah natives were navigating rapids with ease, they even looked forward to it! Today, whitewater rafting in Utah is a favorite family adventure. Here in Flaming Gorge, our stretch of the Green River offers a range of floating options from mild to wild!

Floating the Green River has become a great adventure for people of all ages. It is perfect for families, youth groups or any that want to really experience one of nature's great wonders. The Green River winds through multi-colored canyons with towering thousand foot walls, meanders through historic Browns Park and then gathers its strength at the imposing Gates of Lodore and tumbles through multiple rapids on its way to Split Mountain in Dinosaur National Monument.

This highly scenic river supports diverse wildlife and a healthy trout population that offers world-class fishing.

Several options exist for the modern day explorer to experience any level of adventure along these fabled waters. The upper section or Section A is 7 miles in length and goes from Flaming Gorge Dam to Little Hole. The occasional mild whitewater allows for easy-going scenic raft trips that can be enjoyed as a guided float or on your own. Several businesses in the vicinity of Dutch John rent a variety of rafts, inflatable kayaks and dory boats.

Below Little Hole, adventure takes another turn – here camping along the river is available at a multitude of primitive river campsites. The river here is enjoyed more for its remote scenic beauty and world-class trout fishing.

After 25 miles of little challenge, proceeding downriver through the towering Gates of Lodore in Browns Park was a test of skill and daring for early day explorers. The fact that Powell named one of the rapids – Disaster Falls – gives one a sense of how well he fared on this particular stretch. Today, this continues to be one of the west’s great whitewater adventures. Several whitewater rafting outfitters offer one day and multi-day trips through this rugged and remote area.

These treasured resources are found within the Flaming Gorge National Recreation Area, the Ashley National Forest and surrounding BLM lands. Flaming Gorge is a land of spectacular red rock cliffs, snowcapped mountains and vast desert basins created by dramatic geologic forces and the determined, carving path of the historic Green River. It may be small in population, but it has landscape and history on a grand scale.

The world class petroglyph sites of Nine Mile Canyon, McConkie Ranch and White Mountain attest to thousands of years of Native American occupation. Mountain Men, including Jim Bridger and Kit Carson, blazed the way through this rich country and held most of their famous annual rendezvous along the Green River.

At the top of Flaming Gorge in southeastern Wyoming, the pathway to westward expansion is seen in some of the country’s best preserved remnants of the Oregon, Mormon, Pony Express and Overland Trails. Flaming Gorge is rich in tales of its hardy and often colorful pioneers like Josie and ‘Queen Anne’ Bassett, that first called this area home. Today, one can visit carefully preserved glimpses of pioneer history at the National Historic Sites of Jarvie’s Ranch, Josie’s Cabin in Dinosaur National Monument and Swett Ranch.

Cattle Ranching is still a way of life around here and the cowboy culture of the Old West is alive and well in all our neighboring towns. Take in one of the many summer rodeos to see exciting displays of local skills honed in generations of traditional ranch life.

In the late 1860’s the building of the transcontinental railroad played its role in the development of the region. Green River, Wyoming was once a true end of the line ‘hell on wheels’ town and Rock Springs, Wyoming was borne from the expanding railroad’s need for its vast coal deposits.

In 1869, Major John Wesley Powell began his epic voyage down the Green and Colorado Rivers. He sought to explore and map one of the last uncharted regions in the United States. During this historic journey, he wrote of the Green River, “it enters the range by a flaring, brilliant, red gorge that may be seen from the north more than a score of miles away...we name it Flaming Gorge.”

This country had its share of outlaws in the old days. Ned Huddleston was born into slavery in Arkansas in 1849. He straddled both sides of the law and joined the infamous Tip Gault Gang, a cattle and horse rustling outfit in Southeastern Wyoming. After narrowly escaping the ambush that killed the rest of the gang, Ned beat tracks south and changed his name to Isom Dart. He was a familiar figure in Browns Hole in the 1890’s and established his own ranch, reputedly rustling a few cattle in doing so. Things did not end so well. Isom Dart was killed by big cattleman assassin Tom Horn on October 3, 1900.
George LeRoy Parker, better known as Butch Cassidy, had cowboys in Browns Park before becoming a professional outlaw. The story of Butch, the Sundance Kid and the Wild Bunch in the region is one of how they spent their time between their famous crimes, where they were friends and neighbors to the early residents. Flaming Gorge Country is where they lived, played and spent their illegal gains. This is where they got their infamous moniker. It’s where they planned their next exploits. And, on occasion, it’s where they showed off the deadly skills that made their illegal careers so successful.

Flaming Gorge is rich in tales of its hardy and often colorful pioneers.

Browns Park was a major outlaw base on the legendary Outlaw Trail, a travel corridor from Canada to New Mexico that was heavily used by outlaws from the 1870s to about 1910. The area of central Wyoming through Eastern Utah was one of the last settled areas of the frontier west – a vast lawless stretch of open country and small settlements and towns. Butch Cassidy and the Wild Bunch knew the area intimately, and it was a key factor in their ability to remain hidden from the ‘long arm of the law’.

The one constant for Flaming Gorge has always been the Green River. In 1908, a group of Wyoming and Utah business men formed the Green River Navigation Company and launched the paddle wheeled steam boat, “Comet”. The plan was to transport passengers and freight from Green River, Wyoming to the ‘lively’ town of Linwood, Utah for a cost of only $5.00. The 55 mile downstream trip was accomplished in 8 hours. Sadly, the voyages of the Comet were short lived; they quickly found that lumbering back upstream was just too dam difficult!

Would you believe there were no paved roads into lower Flaming Gorge until 1954 and the first electrical power line was not installed until 1950? In April 1956, the construction of Flaming Gorge Dam was authorized. The last bucket of concrete poured on November 15, 1962. President John F. Kennedy flipped a switch that started power generation in 1963 and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson dedicated the Dam on August 17, 1964. When full, the reservoir is 91 miles long and has 375 miles of shoreline.

Take some time to visit the free regional museums in Green River, Rock Springs, Fort Bridger, Manila and Vernal; all offer a multitude of exhibits that dig a little deeper into our rich and colorful history.
Red Canyon Rim
The most scenic trail in Flaming Gorge Country is a delight for all ages! The trail offers magnificent views of sinuous Red Canyon - a fantastic 1,700 feet deep gorge carved over the years by the mighty Green River. In 1964, the floodgates of Flaming Gorge Dam were created from the waters of the Green. The color contrast between the red walls of Red Canyon and the green/blue color of the lake is indeed photo worthy. This route follows the south side of the canyon rim and provides many spectacular overlooks of the lake below. The single-track trail is suitable for both hiking and mountain biking. It is easy to moderate in difficulty and offers several trailheads with hikes from 1 to 9 miles.

Tamarack Lake
Experience the famous High Uintas! This short, easy trail is a great introduction to the splendor of the High Uintas wilderness. It also offers one of the best chances to spot moose in Flaming Gorge Country. Pace yourself, however, the trail starts at 10,429 feet! Follow the well marked trail in and out of sub alpine forests and flower filled meadows – keeping an eye out for moose in any of the brushy open areas. The trail splits in about 1 mile, but both directions end up at Tamarack Lake (the lefthand fork goes past Jessen Lake as well). This 2.8 mile roundtrip trail is for hikers and horseman only and is rated moderate due to the high elevation.

Little Hole National Scenic Trail
This well-worn path wanders along the edge of the Green River as it re-emerges from Flaming Gorge Dam. Wildly popular with fishermen, it is also a family delight. The river is framed by towering canyon walls and stately ponderosa pine. Wildlife abounds along the trail from raptors to river otters. The trail is so picturesque, it received a National Scenic Trail designation shortly after its creation. This is an easy walk of up to 7 miles and is available for mountain biking during certain seasons.

Dowd Mountain
This trail combines exciting single and double track trails coupled with scenery, wildlife, and a roller coaster finish. The Dowd Mountain trail leads to a breathtaking overlook of Flaming Gorge, including views of the western portion of the lake. On a clear day, the horizon extends well into Wyoming. This moderate 11 mile loop is certainly one of the best mountain bike rides in Flaming Gorge Country.
Two-thirds of Flaming Gorge National Recreation area lays in Sweetwater County, Wyoming. This high desert country in Southwest Wyoming is home to over 10,500 square miles for hiking, biking, fishing, camping, sightseeing, golfing, hunting dinosaurs, shopping, or just plain getting away from it all.
Adventure awaits on the Green River that runs through the city of Green River, Wyoming just north of Flaming Gorge and can be accessed from many points. Whether you are interested in fly-fishing, kayaking, wildlife viewing, or a relaxing float trip, you’ll find it on the Green.

The newly constructed Whitewater Park and North Channel Tubing area at Expedition Island Park in the town of Green River provide amenities for floating river users and swimmers of a wide range of abilities. Green River’s White Water Park has an air bag system that generates white water. It’s the only one of its' kind west of the Mississippi River. In the north river channel, directly adjacent to the outdoor Splash Park, is a 1,200 feet long lazy river/tubing channel. The channel features a series of 4 – ½ foot drops and 3 large pools. The 4 feet deep pools provide gentle currents suitable for swimming and wading while the drops provide excitement for tubers and beginning level canoers and kayakers.

The Pilot Butte Wild Horse Scenic Loop Self-Guided Tour is a backcountry drive that you and your family will never forget because Sweetwater County’s cherished wild horses are living examples of a wide-open landscape and untamed frontier spirit. You can begin this tour in either Green River or Rock Springs. Visit www.TourWyoming.com for a map of the tour route.

Sweetwater County is a land of ancient volcanoes, modern herds of wild horses and the only desert elk herd found in North America. As a result of the volcanic flows from these Pleistocene eruptions, the Killpecker Sand Dunes were formed and are the second largest moving sand dunes in the world. Many recreationalists enjoy hiking and driving off-road vehicles in this unique area.

Dinosaurs thundered across the open spaces of Wyoming tens of millions of years before human beings. They’re long gone now, but you can see five life-size replicas of these hulky creatures at Western Wyoming Community College in Rock Springs.

Sweetwater County has more miles of still-visible pioneer trails than any other area in the United States. The Oregon Trail, Pony Express Route, Cherokee Trail, Overland Trail, Parting of the Ways, and Old Emigrant Trail all pass through Sweetwater County. In fact, Highway 28 parallels the Oregon, Mormon Pioneer, Pony Express and California National Historic Trails. Intact trail ruts are visible at the False Parting of the Ways, Simpson’s Hollow and Pilot Butte sites.

This is the only place in the world where you can view and even touch over 1,500 bones partially exposed in their final resting place and left on display to awe modern day visitors at the newly reopened Quarry and Visitor Center in Dinosaur National Monument. Known as the most productive Jurassic Period dinosaur quarry in the world, many of the finest museums in the country display dinosaur skeletons excavated from here. We think that’s pretty cool!

In nearby Vernal, kids can spot large dinosaurs all over town. From the “Pink” dinosaur on the east end to the “T-Rex” who dresses up for each holiday on the west end. You will feel like you have stepped into a real life Jurassic Park. In fact, the Utah State Fieldhouse Museum is surrounded by them. Make sure to plan a stop at the Dinosaur Gardens.

Dinosaurs are the stars of the show, but not all there is to do and see in the area. Petroglyphs are the rock stars of Dinosaurland, Cowboys and Western Heritage are the corner stones, and Hiking, Biking, Rafting, Fishing, and ATVing are the future of Dinosaurland!

SO WELCOME, Stay awhile, Enjoy the beauty and adventure that is Dinosaurland Vernal, Utah!

Play like a Paleontologist
Better make sure you have your Dinosaur Hunting License, cause there's so much dinosaur tracking to do in North eastern Utah's-Dinosaurland. For starters there's Dinosaur National Monument Quarry, Utah State Field House Museum, Dinosaur Gardens, and Red Fleet State Park dinosaur tracks. Stop by the BLM office and find out where you can do a bit of digging for fossils yourself!

Take it to the Gorge
Whether you like to boat, fish, bike or hike, make your way up the Flaming Gorge-Uinta's National Scenic Byway. Stop by Red Canyon Overlook, drive the Sheep Creek Canyon Loop, and get a good look inside the Flaming Gorge Dam. Rough it or live it up. Either way, make sure you leave time for some serious star gazing.

Picture This!!!
Dinosaurland is home to the longest corridor of Fremont Indian petroglyphs (carving in rock) and pictographs (printing on rocks) in the world. Explore McConkie Ranch in Dry Fork Canyon, Jones Hole, Echo Park, Nine Mile Canyon and you'll discover these ancient wonders. Some over 200 feet high!

Run the River
Easy or Wild-a river trip down Dinosaurland's Green or Yampa Rivers is a thrill you'll never forget. Make it the perfect family vacation-or scream for extreme adventure. Whatever your choice, our guides and outfitters can get you and your family down the river in style.

Take a Hike or Bike
Trails, trails, trails, and more trails. In Dinosaurland, you can cruise through mountain meadows, blaze across high desert canyons, or climb alpine forests. Need another reason to head northeast? BIKE magazine commented "Better than Moab?". When the summer months bring sizzling temperatures to the valleys below, biking in the Uinta's is at its best, with small crowds and GREAT trails.

Hook a Worm
Catch record-breaking trout at Flaming Gorge. Fly-Fish at Jones Hole. Cast a line into our 600 lakes and rivers. The bottom line is-Dinosaurland is the Fisherman's Reel Deal.

Stir-Up the Wild West!
From rodeos to pow wows, from outlaw trail rides to professional bull riding, the Wild West is alive and strong in Dinosaurland. And so is Western Hospitality! Come join in the fun as we celebrate our diverse cultures and western heritage.

Nuke a Marshmallow
With so much open space and public land, it's hard not to find a place to camp in Dinosaurland. Don't forget to bring the marshmallows and camp fire stories.

Dig up the Past
Shop at John Jarvie's general store where Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid stocked up on supplies. It's only one of our many historical museums in the local area. Make sure you visit the Western Heritage, Daughter of the Utah's Pioneers, and Utah Field House of Natural History-State Park, for tales of the pioneers, outlaws, and rugged mountain men of America's old west.

Get Wet
With 3 State Park reservoirs in Dinosaurland, you are sure to get wet. Hitch onto the boat or pack your swim bags for a day on the beach at Steinaker. You can have your boat launch and gliding across the water in 15 minutes from the center of town. There is plenty of water at Red Fleet, Steinaker, and Starvation for everyone!
